

Editor's Note

Mary Hallock Morris ▪ University of Southern Indiana

Dear IPSA Membership,

It has been a pleasure to serve as the editor for volumes 10-13 of the Indiana Journal of Political Science. Over the past four years, we have worked to bring our readership interesting articles written by professors and graduate students from across the state of Indiana. We have published articles ranging from an analysis of voting in Congressional primaries to a classroom-based experiment on teaching college students how to vote, from an overview of protest movements in east Asian democracies to a discussion of the politics of global sex trafficking, from a policy analysis of toxic cultures in organizations to a review of the problems associated with judicial implementation and impact studies.

I would like to extend a warm welcome to our incoming editor, Andrew Downs, assistant professor of political science and director of the Mike Downs Center for Indiana Politics at Indiana University-Purdue University Fort Wayne. Let's help him out! Please volunteer your services as reviewers and editorial board members – and keep on submitting your quality articles for consideration.

*With warmest regards,
Mary*

Mary Hallock Morris
Outgoing Editor
Indiana Journal of Political Science

Reviewers Wanted!

The editorial board of the Indiana Journal of Political Science is looking for volunteers to review article submissions in the following areas:

Indiana Politics ▪ State & Local Politics ▪ American National Politics
Political Behavior ▪ Public Policy & Public Administration
Political Theory ▪ Campaigns & Elections
Comparative & International Politics ▪ Women & Politics

Interested individuals should contact:

Andrew Downs, Incoming Editor
Director, Mike Downs Center for Indiana Politics
Indiana University – Purdue University Fort Wayne
2101 East Coliseum Boulevard
Fort Wayne, IN 46805-1499
downsa@ipfw.edu
Phone: (260) 481-6691